NURSES and firemen dominate the sexual fantasies of men and women in Britain, with politicians and traffic wardens ranking near the bottom, according to a poll just published.

Some 47 per cent of women fantasise about firefighters, while almost 54 per cent of men dream about women dressed as nurses.

By contrast, only 1.7 per cent of women confessed to having fantasies about politicians, while 6.5 per cent of men fantasise about traffic wardens.

Soldiers populate the dreams of 28 per cent of women, followed by businessmen (27 per cent), doctors (26 per cent) and footballers (20 per cent). At the bottom of the list were milkmen (only 0.8 per cent).

Men dreamed about nurses, maids (44 per cent) and flight attendants (40 per cent).

A greater proportion of women fantasised about same-sex relationships — 23.5 per cent compared with 5.3 per cent of men — but men were more likely to dream about threesomes (55 per cent versus 31 per cent).

The survey questioned 1818 adults and was carried out by Budget Van Insurance.
